1. SMS/Text Messaging

Questions

- 1 Do you like texting?
- 2 Do you prefer sending or receiving messages?
- 3 Have you ever received a confusing text message?
- 4 In what circumstances is making a phone call better than sending an SMS?
- 5 Have you ever had difficulty replying?
- 6 Do you text someone if they don't answer the phone?

Sample Answers

- 1 Do you like texting?

Yes, I do. Although talking to someone over a call is more facile, I don't despise texting someone either.

- 2 Do you prefer sending or receiving messages?

Yes, I prefer receiving messages, especially when the case is urgent. In case I missed an important call or a piece of information, texts can prove themselves to be a saviour.

- 3 Have you ever received a confusing text message?

Yes, I have received a message that flummoxed me to the core. My friend and I planned to go out for a movie. However, the whole plan got trampled upon because of his message on my WhatsApp. We booked two seats in a nearby theatre. Yet, by mistake, he sent the location of another theatre in an absolute opposite direction and is 37 km apart from the one where we booked the seats at. Due to this obfuscation, we missed the movie and the amount we spent on the booking went to waste.

- 4 In what circumstances is making a phone call better than sending an SMS?

I believe making a phone call is sounder than an SMS for almost every urgent piece of information or call. Time and again, messages tend to get deciphered in the wrong way, which often creates pandemonium, especially if the matter is crucial. Therefore, the corporate communication or essential instructions should be rendered on a phone call rather than an SMS.

5 Have you ever had difficulty replying?

Yes, there was a time when I was in a meeting and a friend of mine texted me on WhatsApp about the party, he was throwing that night. However, since I was in a meeting, I couldn't reply.

6 Do you text someone if they don't answer the phone?

Yes, if someone doesn't pick up the phone call, I text them more often than not, depending upon the urgency and necessity of the context for which the phone call was made.

As technology is making strides and nearly everything that seemed unpragmatic and impractical almost a decade ago has blown the ground with a thud. I believe this would be very beneficial for psychiatric patients and people with mental stress who do not prefer to express a lot.

Well, I don't think it's a matter of choice for the older people to use apps in my country as most of them are not even cognizant of the existence of technological advancements. However,

- 3 Which stage of your life do you think is the most important?

I believe all of the stages of life are important, but childhood is the paramount one. It is crucial for our physical, emotional, and mental development. A child's brain can be moulded, and whatever one learns during their childhood will determine the kind of a person they will become as adults.

- 1 Is there anything that makes you feel happy lately?

Yes, chasing my dreams is making me jovial lately. I believe we all have a driving force that compels us to wake up each morning and work hard. For now, the thing that is filling me up with sheer happiness is acquiring an admission to one of the putative universities to pursue a course of my choice.

- 2 What do you do to stay happy?

For me, feeling happy is nothing less than a roller-coaster ride. There are days I feel down in the dumps, and there are others when I feel overjoyed. However, regardless of the situation, I don't suppress any of my feelings and don't force myself to be happy. I merely go with the flow.

- 3 Can you stay happy all the time?

No. In fact, that is a vague myth. Humans have been blessed with a myriad of emotions. There are times when we feel anxious, worn out, despondent. Also, there are times when we feel neutral, neither happy nor sad. So, it's obvious that nobody can stay happy all the time.

- 4 Is it important to be happy?

Definitely, it is. Life is too short to dwell on anything that doesn't give us utmost joy. In a way, happiness is directly related to our physical health. The memories of my primary school are one of the most cherished memories I have with me. Everything about primary school was fun. The classes never felt boring, my teachers were always kind and helpful and everyone in the class was friendly. The most memorable parts of primary school were the recesses where all of my friends would run out to the playground and enjoy the rides and swings.

2 How did you go to your primary school?

My primary school was just a few kilometres away from my residence, so reaching there was never a hassle. My parents had arranged a carpool service which helped me and other students from my locality reach school every morning. - 4 Is volunteering worth the time it takes?
- 5 What could you do to help if you had no money?

Sample Answers

1 Why do you think people volunteer?

The motive behind volunteering is different for every individual. Typically, when a person signs up for voluntary work, it is to help the poor. Such endeavours are also undertaken by people who have a lot of spare time and want to do something productive and impactful. There are also instances where volunteering is only an addition to a person's resume. This is more common among college students who lack work experience.

2 Would you like to work as a volunteer?

Yes, I would like to work as a volunteer sometime in the future. I believe that such humanitarian activities are only possible when a person does not have an immediate need or goal to achieve. Since I am in my early twenties, there are various aspects of my life that need more attention. Thus, at this stage of my life, volunteering is not feasible.

3 Have you ever done any voluntary work?

Yes, I have participated in voluntary work during the first semester of my college. I was part of the Green Club which often organized welfare activities and events. Owing to the after-effects of a super cyclone, we were given the responsibility to provide food and clothing to the affected. It was a team effort, and I had a wonderful experience during this activity.

4 Is volunteering worth the time it takes?

In my opinion, volunteering is only suitable for individuals who do not have any urgency in their lives. Worrying about the welfare of others is a selfless activity. If a person's mind is preoccupied with something else, such endeavours are difficult to carry out. As the saying goes,

'charity begins at home', a person should only take on the responsibility of volunteering if their time is not accounted for and they are free from any kind of stress.

5 What could you do to help if you had no money?

There are several ways to be charitable that do not involve the exchange of money. Moreover, it is always more prudent to provide the destitute with essentials like food and clothing. I like to do the laundry as it does not require a lot of effort. I also help with grocery shopping as it acts as a kind of physical exercise.

2 What kinds of housework do you often do?

The kind of housework that I do depends on the day of the week. During weekdays, I help with the cleaning of dishes and utensils after lunch and dinner, as it is a simple chore. However, on the weekends, my family and I clean the entire house as a weekly ritual. I also help with other household chores like dusting the electrical appliances, scrubbing the bathrooms, etc.

3 Did you do housework when you were a child?

No, as a child, I seldom took responsibility for household chores. Since we used to live in a house, unlike an apartment, cleaning the entire house was a laborious task. Nevertheless, on special occasions, my mother would tell me to help her with cleaning, and it was an exciting experience as we would often find lost toys and items while going through all the nooks and crannies.

4 Do you think that children should do housework?

I believe that children should be taught the importance of sharing the responsibility of housework. It is often seen that in a household, the onus of housework often falls on women. Such conventions are not at all progressive, even though they are very commonplace. That being said, children should be given household chores to carry out so that they can be responsible for themselves and their families in the future.

5 Do you think that men and women should share housework?

I am a strong supporter of the notion that housework should be shared between all members of the household, regardless of their gender. Besides, some of my favorite foreign food items are the American Chopsuey, Chinese Hakka Noodles, Arabian Shawarma and Baklava, which are mouthwatering and heavenly delectable.

2 Do you like to try new food?

Of course! I'm a foodie, and one of the perks of being a travel photographer is that I get to try a lot of new food varieties. Whenever I visit any new environment, I refresh myself and seek out new food items as each city across the world has so many unique flavours and dishes worth trying. Further, tasting new dishes widens my horizon about the place, introduces me to a deeper understanding of food culture and the people's lifestyles in a better way.

3 What kind of new food have you tried recently?

As I said earlier, I had recently traveled to the multicultural city, Toronto, which opened my eyes and taste buds to a whole new range of authentic flavours. There are many celebrities I like, but Ayushman Khurrana tops my favorite celebrity list as he's a notable celebrity whose films are different from others. To be honest, I'd love to be treated like a celebrity. But, I'm equally scared because a celebrity's life is entirely open to the world and complicated. ## IELTS Speaking – Part 2 & 3

1. Describe a time when you had some medicine.

You should say:

- When it happened?
- Who gave it you?
- Why you had it?
- How you felt about it?

Sample Answer:

I abhor taking medicines generally and taking them for paltry issues and mild health inconveniences is not what I usually practice. However, there was a time when I became quite lackadaisical with a fever that I got after taking my vaccination for Covid -19. The post-vaccine symptoms took a toll on my health not because of the vaccine but because of intestinal inflammation that I came to know later.

After bearing the pain for some days, I finally decided to get myself examined and the doctor confirmed that it was not due to the vaccine symptom. Instead, I had Colitis due to which there is an inflammation in my intestine wall, and hence the pain. So, I was recommended medicines and routine checkups every third day.

Actually, after getting my vaccination for Covid-19, I was told that I could expect mild symptoms post the vaccine as the immune system gets activated and charged up as a reaction to the constituents of the vaccine. However, little did I know that under the pretext of the symptoms, I would be brushing my intestinal inflammation aside. On the stipulated day, I got my dose and at night, I had a mild headache and a slight fever. The next day, I felt a severe headache and pain in my intestine, which I thought would be a cascade of symptoms I was going through, so I didn't take any medicine. However, my situation deteriorated with no fever or headache but an excruciating pain in my intestine due to Colitis. Thus, when the doctor prescribed the medicines for this, I had no option but to take them.

I felt quite relieved after two doses of the medicine and got treated well due to the prescription. Consequently, I realized that health is not something one can topple up with.

Generally, there is a mindset of people that medicines make one's immunity enervated and hence one gets more prone to diseases. Due to this reason, they avoid taking medicine.

3 Some people say medicine is harmful. Do you think so?

Everything taken in excess and without proper consultation or guidance is harmful, and so is the case herewith. Medicines can be harmful if one gets the hold of a pill and a capsule for every mild health hassle, as that enfeebles one's natural tendency to fight off the diseases. Apart from that, people generally consider a single medicine to be a panpharmakon for every disease without consulting a doctor and that, at times, can get severe.

- When was it?
- What was the original opinion?
- Why you changed it?
- And explain how you felt about it?

Sample Answer:

Opinions tend to get modified often and that keeps on altering every time a new perspective comes into the picture. One such incident where my preconceived notion was changed upside down was on my 16th birthday.

Until my 16th birth anniversary celebration, I believed that true ebullience and vitality come only when we celebrate an occasion in the grandest way possible and that throwing lavish parties was synonymous with real joy. I used to celebrate each of my birthdays in the best possible way as per what a typical teenager would think and want to celebrate as.

Then on my 16th birthday, due to certain circumstantial prevalence, I couldn't actualize my plans to celebrate the year of 'sweet 16' in the way I imagined it to be. I still remember how crumpled my emotions were and how disconcerted I was until my parents took me to an orphanage. That was when my definition of contentment was changed and a film of pseudo-happiness was denounced.

My parents bought lots of gifts and until we reached the orphanage, I didn't even have a shade of the idea for whom those gifts were being bought for. The next moment I vividly remember was the wide grin and the sounds of chuckling coming from the beautiful faces of those underprivileged children. I was so contented and overwhelmed with emotions that I couldn't hold myself to stay and play with those kids for the rest of the day and that indeed was a moment of epiphany for me. This incident not only made my 16th birthday the best one to date, but it also changed my opinion and brought me to the actual horizon of humanity and true happiness.

However, some conversations can become awkward and the topic may not keep you engrossed for a long time. There was a time when I had such an exchange with an eleven-year-old and it was the most coerced and banal conversation I ever had so far.

My friends and I planned a trip to a hill station 200 kilometres away from the city I lived in. However, that trip became very searing to my ears because of the younger brother of one of my friends. Five people went on that trip, and I took the car's back seat. The little boy urged me to sit with him, to which I happily agreed. However, little did I know that the boy would become a matter of irk for me.

The boy started talking about all the animated series and animes that he had seen so far and wanted me to talk about them with the same zeal. Unfortunately, I didn't even have an idea about the ABC of those series. He pointed out my indifference and lack of exhilaration for the toon series he was such a zealot of and started chivvying me to talk about the series that I might have watched in the past.

An apology can work wonders and it is one of the best ways to rectify one's mistakes or misdemeanours with someone. I remember I had a minor fallout with one of our school prefects back in the days, and we were at loggerheads for over a week. However, his apology was enough to call it a truce and to placate the hard feelings we shared.

In our school, there was a provision for making prefects for every house we had, i.e., red, yellow house, etc. I was the prefect of the Red House and the guy named Thomas was a prefect of the Blue House. Thomas and I shared a good bond and were very amenable to each other. One day he planned to go absent from the annual function of our school and wanted me to miss it as well so that both of us would be at the harsh receiving end of the slander and chide. However, I denied his plans, so he had to come to school as well. After that, we were at tiffs for almost a week until he realised how silly it was on his part to miss the function on such an important day and, above all, wanted me to strike a chord with him. He apologised for his conduct and I happily accepted that.

He came to me, smiled, and said sorry for all he did. As he accepted his mistake, I showed no sign of rigidity and accepted the apology. Talking about the book, which, apart from being an enriched source of knowledge, became my go-to partner is the book named 'Laws of the Spirit World'. I never thought of reading this book. However, while surfing the internet for some spiritual content, I came across this prodigious book as I have a propensity for spirituality.

I have always been spiritually inclined and philosophy and the way of living have been one of my favourite subjects. This book took that zeal and exuberance towards the art of living to an altogether higher level. It talks about the essence of living and that all of our actions are watched over. Humans are their own guides and they do not have to look for somebody else to guide or direct them if they pay attention to what their conscience and subconscious mind say.

I read this book as I found the reviews and ratings on a positive note. It is a critically-acclaimed book and I believe all those rave reviews and amazing ratings its readers gave were all worth it. At any time, whether good or bad, this book comes to the fore and boosts you up and revitalises your esteem.

You should say

- What was it?
- How was it broken?
- How did you get it repaired?
- And how did you feel about it?

Sample Answer:

These days, there is a conventional idea to buy newer models instead of getting the obsolete, broken ones repaired.

However, just a few weeks back, our refrigerator broke down. Fortunately, it was still under warranty; thus, we didn't have to replace it. All of a sudden, it ceased to work. We tried plugging and unplugging it but to no avail. Initially, we considered getting the socket checked as there could have been an issue with it. But when I plugged my phone charger into the socket, it worked. That's when we knew the refrigerator was broken. Not sure, but it could have been because of the voltage fluctuation as it rained cats and dogs last week.

We had bought this machine only a couple of months back. Thus, we dialed the company and scheduled a technician's visit. Upon arriving, he evaluated the situation and declared that the main circuit was burnt, which caused the fridge to break down. The good thing was he came equipped with all of the necessary parts. So, without any further ado, he replaced it.

The feeling was definitely unpleasant. Whenever something breaks down in the house, it creates an unwanted ruckus. And, that's what happened that day. Most of the food got spoilt because of this breakdown. However, once it got repaired, we received an official apology email from the company, which was indeed a good gesture from their end.

We appreciated the quick and prompt services provided by the company.

3 What kinds of things do people like to repair by themselves?

I think DIY videos and articles available on YouTube and Google have made it possible to repair anything and everything ourselves. Recently, my mom fixed her sewing machine by watching a YouTube video. I have fixed my mobile phone and laptop many times by just searching about the issue and finding a quick fix.

4 Why do people like to get their mobile phones repaired in specialised stores?

I think the main reason is that they don't want to void the phone's warranty. Most of the companies clearly mention that if the phone is opened by a non-registered technician or store, the warranty would not be applicable. In my opinion, this is just another stratagem by companies to ensure that they can charge people heavily for parts, which could be repaired cheaply otherwise.

Sample Answer:

In my lifespan, I have received a myriad of free things. However, one of them that I would like to share here is when I received a free cup of coffee in Starbucks. The occasion was my birthday.

Since I am a frequent visitor to Starbucks, one of the salespersons suggested that I get a card. With forbearance, she explained all of the perks and benefits I was to get with this free card.

At first, I was a bit sceptical about taking it up. However, after much persuasion by the salesgirl, I signed up for it. Out of all the advantages, one of them was a free coffee in my birthday month.

Completely clueless, I randomly visited Starbucks in September - my birthday month. When I reached the counter to pay for the coffee, the salesperson told me that I had a free coffee due as it was my birthday month. Thus, the order was completely free.

I was stumped but equally excited. Upon inquiring about the type of coffee and the customizations, they said I could order whatever I wanted. So, taking a different track than usual, I ordered a mocha with whipped cream.

I always wanted to try this one but was refraining as it was a bit expensive. Since it was the perfect opportunity, I went for it without any ado. I simply relished every sip of my coffee and felt satisfied.

At the same time, those who cannot afford it should be backed up by the government through loans and scholarships to accomplish this goal.

In my opinion, primary education should be free. The reason is that it is highly indispensable for everybody. As far as higher education is concerned, it could cost a bit but should also be affordable.

3 What free gifts do companies usually give to their customers?

As far as I know, in India, companies distribute budgeted gifts, such as cups, pens, calendars, etc., to customers. Usually, these products have brand elements printed on them, such as the company's name, logo, address, etc.

4 Why do customers like to receive free gifts from companies?

When talking about childhood, nothing could be more precious than a bewildering collection of toys I had.

Since I was the first child in my clan, both maternal and paternal, I was fortunate enough to have a gamut of toys, including dolls, stuffed animals, building blocks, puzzles, handmade toys, board games, small vehicles, and many more.

However, out of all, the one that was extremely close to my heart was a handmade stuffed caricature of Noddy, which my grandfather gifted me on my 10th birthday.

Back in the day, I was a cartoon fanatic. I used to watch varying animated shows for hours altogether. During the weekends, it was nothing but arduous to take away the remote control from me. Amongst others, I used to watch Noddy In Toyland for a long period of time. I was fascinated by all of the characters, especially Noddy, Tessie Bear, and Big Ears. I was awestruck by how Noddy managed to do everything on his own.

So, this one time, when my grandfather asked what I wanted to be, I said that I wanted to be Noddy in a jiffy. Just a few days later, on my birthday morning, I saw a large gift-wrapped box in my room. I wanted to open it that instant, but out of the blue, all my family members started to sing a birthday song.

To be honest, I am feeling much more undisturbed now than before. Earlier, I used to be on my phone until the wee hours of the night. But now, I meditate for half an hour to relax my mind before sleeping. Also, I take a deep slumber for 8 hours daily, which is helping my focus and performance.

The truth is that, just like many other people, I had a phone fixation. Being an integral part of this materialistic world, often people leave no stone unturned to rake in massive amounts of money. However, in contrast to these people, there are some who still go beyond the conventional limits to offer unabated support to those in need.

I am grateful to have such an individual in my own family. And, he is none other than my father, Mr. Rakesh Sinha. Lately, he helped up to 10 people with their medical care.

Since the world does not cease to surprise us with turbulent times, a lot of businesses shut down with each passing day. Worse, some even come on the verge of extinction. So, during the second wave of Covid-19 in India, while most hospitals and privately functioning doctors were minting money, they had the least interest in providing medical facilities without their own benefits. During this time, there was an acute shortage of beds in the hospitals. Moreover, the medical system was completely disarrayed. Seeing the plight of those people and feeling blessed with the privileges, my father decided to arrange free medical treatments for needy people. He worked with dedication and determination for an entire month and managed to save several lives.

2 Should parents reward children? Why and how?

Yes, parents should take into consideration rewarding their children from time to time for every achievement. It invigorates them to consistently work hard and do good deeds in life. However, rather than offering materialistic rewards, parents can try praising their children in front of relatives, spend time with them outside, or take them for their favourite activity.

3 Is it good to reward children too often? Why?

From my perspective, I don't think parents should reward their children too often as it may integrate a sense of entitlement into their brains. - Why do you admire this person?

Sample Answer:

Often, I find myself inclined toward biographies of successful business personalities from across the world as they, I believe, could be the best teachers. They allow us to learn a lot from their real experiences.

Lately, I came across an article about how a barber turned into a businessman and now has a worth of billions altogether. Post reading the article, I was extremely fascinated by his sheer hard work and destiny. And now, I admire him the most. Commencing his journey with a humble beginning, Ramesh ended up losing both of his parents at a young age, resulting in the inability to attend school.

To survive in this cut-throat world, he began working as a barber and gave haircuts at Rs. 2. However, nothing could overshadow his intelligence and wittiness. Thus, after saving from his barber's work, he bought a second-hand car and began a car rental business. Despite upgrading his venture, he didn't cease to give haircuts. Gradually and steadily, his car rental business grew profoundly, making him the billionaire that he is today. In his fleet, he owns hundreds of cars, including Rolls-Royce and Maserati.

I admire Ramesh Babu because despite living a king-sized life, he contributes heavily to society. His benefaction has made him a true legend. In general, an ideal retirement age should be 60 - 65 years.

I believe there are many factors that ascertain the success of a business. Also, the importance of these factors varies as per the business type. I have a flair and an eye for creativity and I always get enchanted by a piece of creative work. One such person who has never failed to lure me by his tangent of creativity is Hemant. He is a great pal of mine and we met in the sophomore year of my college. He ensures to add a tinge of art in almost everything, be it his room decor, craftwork, designing of his vehicles, and so on and so forth. He never fails to attract attention for his novel piece of innovation. One such incident where he completely swept the ground with his talent was in the calligraphy competition that occurred during the Annual Fest of our college, in which he participated in the eleventh hour. Understandably, we didn't have very high hopes for him, and all of us were discussing that he wouldn't be able to make it this time as he wasn't prepared. We were about to leave when the bell rang as the time was up and all the participants were called to the centre of the stage to show their art piece. The next moment I vividly remember was when the whole of the auditorium was filled with applause and whistles, and this legendary boy was able to continue his streak of winning the contest again. Though I won't rate myself too high on creativity, yes, I have a penchant for it. I like writing and music and never miss a chance to experiment with it.

2 Is it good for children to learn arts?

Yes absolutely. I believe it is immensely useful for the children to learn arts as it gives them the feathers to fly and explore their creative selves. I think humans are innately creative and making children learn art would provide them ample opportunities to dig deeper into their creative selves. Hence, I believe teaching art for kids should rather be a priority, thereby making them cognizant of a colourful world of creativity.

3 What kind of jobs require people to be creative?

That being said, I still feel there is no job that could work efficiently without creativity and creative approaches.

4 Do you think leaders need to have the creative ability?

Most certainly! Leaders have to be mandatorily creative and innovative in all aspects without fail. People look up to someone who has got new and unprecedented things to offer. Nobody would follow or willingly listen to an individual who serves similar hackneyed and mundane

- And how did you feel about doing it?

Sample Answer

Since my childhood, I have never liked any complexities in life. At almost every step of my life, I tried keeping things short and simple. However, in a few situations, the circumstances prompt me to go with arduous tasks just to get a different taste of life. Lately, I had one such experience when I finished a daunting task after a lot of effort and hard work.

With India being hit by the second wave of Covid-19, the country was experiencing a tough time. Keeping the havoc in mind, the higher authorities imposed stringent restrictions, and the nation was under lockdown. Since all educational institutions were shut down, I was forced to give exams online. However, unfortunately, just a few days before my final exam, my phone stopped working. On top of that, to my dismay, all of the shops were closed at that time. I did not have any other option than to repair the phone on my own.

Definitely, it was taxing for me as I didn't have any know-how about the repair. While I was pretty good at operating the phone, I was a rookie at repair.

Here, my wits and quick learning skills came to the rescue. To begin with, I resorted to the internet to get help. I watched plenty of videos and read an array of articles. It took me almost 7 hours to figure out a minor issue that could have been corrected in 10 minutes, given I was a professional. With the unabated support of the internet and my zeal to get my phone running, I managed to repair it after hours altogether. However, it didn't end there as the challenging part was to reassemble the phone post repairing it.

Once done, I sighed in relief and felt proud of myself. After all, I had learned how to repair a phone - all by myself.

All in all, I believe that tackling challenging tasks is a must-have attribute that everybody should follow to gain success in life.

Part 3

1 What kinds of jobs require people to be confident?

Nearly all kinds of job roles require the incumbent to have some degree of confidence. If individuals do not believe in themselves, no matter how competent they are, they will fail. Sometimes, even if a person does not possess the required skill set to perform a task, they can get the job done if they have confidence. In my opinion, jobs that fall in the category of sales and public relations require the job holders to be extremely confident. Since people who work in such job roles mainly perform the task of handling customers and the general public, having a confident personality is a must for such positions.

2 On what occasions should children be encouraged? How?

Children should always be supported in their endeavours. One of the finest ways of facilitating the growth of a child is to encourage them to pursue their interests. Children should be encouraged when they are unsure of their abilities. There are numerous occasions when children doubt themselves and often give up due to the fear of failure. Youngsters, especially young children, should be encouraged by their parents. Encouragement can be given by providing assistance and reassurance to children regardless of their capabilities.

3 How do you help children stay focused?

First of all, it is important to understand that the needs of every child are different. There are several ways to help children remain focused. Some children can easily concentrate on a task if the activity they are doing is engaging. Some children tend to be more focused if their ambience is calm and free from distractions. It is important to recognise the individual needs of a child before attempting to help them concentrate on their daily activities.

4 What challenges do young people face today?

There are several problems that young people have to deal with regularly. Adolescence, late teenage and early adulthood are some of the most difficult times in a person's life. Youth is a period of time when an individual is confused, frustrated and in some cases unhappy with the state of their life. One of the biggest challenges faced by young people is in determining their goals and aspirations. Young people are often perplexed when it comes to choosing a definite path that provides them with opportunities and certainty.

5 What are the most difficult things for youngsters to do?

There are several aspects of a youngster's life that are difficult to deal with. Young people often face problems that may seem insurmountable and even discouraging. Since youth is a time when a person is about to begin their journey as a self-sufficient individual, there are various tough decisions that need to be taken. Since young people lack sufficient life experience, they are often faced with the consequences of uninformed decisions and hasty choices.

- And explain why you think he/ she did it in a smart way?

Sample Answer

I have always considered myself to be a clever person, but there are times when a situation is so unnerving that it is difficult to come up with a solution. During such times, I feel blessed to have sensible and resourceful friends. Although I am rarely in a dicey situation that I cannot find my way out of, there have been times when it was the quick-wit of a friend which saved me. I would like to talk about one instance where Ishaan, a very close friend of mine, was able to get me out of a tough situation. It was during the first semester of college, and I had just gotten my driver's license, so I had been taking my father's motorcycle to the institute. One day, we had plans to visit another friend who stayed close to me. Ishaan and I were going to meet him on my father's motorbike. Unfortunately, the vehicle ran into problems and stopped suddenly on the road. Since we were in the middle of a busy road, I steered the bike towards the side, and both of us began to look for the cause of such a snag. Since this was the first time I had faced such a problem with the bike, I started panicking about the situation. Nevertheless, Ishaan quickly figured out that there was a connection problem with the vehicle's battery, and he was right. I was relieved and impressed with how quickly he figured out and even solved the problem by making a few tweaks to the battery, and we were able to carry on without any hassle.

Part 3

1 Do you think children are born smart or do they learn to become smart?

In my opinion, smartness is an attribute that one acquires with experience. An individual can indeed have hereditary abilities that make them brighter than the average person. For example, when examined, Albert Einstein's brain was said to be younger than the average person's brain at the age of his death. Nevertheless, a person can be extremely intelligent and lack common sense at the same time. Thus, even if a person is born with a sharp mind, prudent decisions can only be made with experience and wisdom.

2 How do children become smart at school?

Children are known to be easily influenced by their surroundings. They adopt habits that they find to be intriguing and follow in the footsteps of their idols and peers alike. If a child is surrounded by friends and teachers who are brainy and sharp-witted, the cognitive development of that student is imminent. Similarly, it is an observable fact that being in the company of dull and incompetent peers makes a person ignorant as well. Thus, it can be assumed that if a child is blessed with skilful teachers and a bright group of friends, they tend to become smart themselves.

3 Why are some people well-rounded and others only good at one thing?

A person can have an array of abilities, and it is entirely dependent on the individual on which of these abilities is more apparent. Many individuals are good at a multitude of activities. However, some individuals are competent in only a certain discipline. Such a phenomenon can have several causes behind it, but such traits are quite common. Usually, all-rounders are known to be sociable as they learn new things from peers, friends or even strangers. On the other hand, individuals who are good at one thing are usually more introverted than others. Thus, they find joy in only a few activities.

4 Why does modern society need talent of all kinds?

Competition is one of the hallmarks of present-day society. If an individual is not proficient in a range of activities, they are often looked down upon by peers. At the same time, employers of the present generation are known to be demanding and expect candidates to multitask regularly. Also, a person needs to be capable of handling multiple responsibilities, especially during their youth, to cope with the challenging environment of modern society. Thus, it is natural for people to develop a knack for all kinds of tasks to be able to survive and thrive in this present day and age.

5 How can we assist youngsters in realising their potential?

There is a common issue with children being forced to follow whatever the majority is doing. There are many cases of students who choose a discipline or even a profession due to its universality and later regret their decision. Parents and teachers need to encourage youngsters to develop interests and hobbies that are stimulating to them. When an individual is exposed to a range of activities, it becomes easier for them to recognize their passion. Thus, to facilitate the growth of the youth into realizing their potential, we must support them in their endeavours.

16. Describe an art or craft activity that you had in school.

You should say:

- What did you make?
- How did you make it?
- What did it look like?
- And how did you feel about the activity?

Sample Answer

Arts and crafts did not fall under the most popular activity among my friends and other schoolmates, yet I was always inclined towards such creative escapades. The form of art that stimulated me the most was painting, and here I would like to talk about this art form and my experience with different painting styles and themes that I came across and learnt during school. Initially, the artworks that I came across in school textbooks never really struck a chord with me, and neither did I put much thought into them or what they were trying to portray. However, my perspective dramatically changed after our art teacher showed us a replica of a brilliant painting by M. F. Husain. Although the painting was a mere imitation, the eccentric imagery, which was oddly captivating, fascinated me like no other piece of art had done until that point in my life. Subsequently, my curiosity about this art form increased with time as I came across more stunning artworks through different sources. The first painting I made was in the 9th grade when we were asked to create something about our country, and the best artworks were to be published in our school newspaper on Independence Day. I was thrilled by this opportunity and put my heart and soul into creating a canvas painting with watercolours that would impress my teachers and classmates. Happily, I was able to convey my patriotism through my work, which depicted the Indian Army as they hoisted our national flag at our borders. My art teacher was delighted to see my painting and recommended it to the editing team of my school newspaper. The entire experience of painting my first piece of art was enriching, and I have considered painting and sketching my passion ever since.

Part 3

1 What kinds of traditional handicrafts are there in your country?

India, the country that I hail from, is one of the richest countries in regards to handicrafts. The countless indigenous handiworks and textiles are a significant part of Indian culture. Some of the well-known traditional handiworks include the Pashmina shawls from Kashmir, the exquisite woodworks of the northern regions including Punjab, painted pottery from the state of Rajasthan and the jute handicrafts from Bengal. The popularity of Indian handicrafts is so widespread that such products have a huge demand across the world.

2 Should children learn more about art? / What are the benefits of making handicrafts?

Art should be an essential part of a child's learning phase. It originates from the creative space in our minds and is the only discipline that cannot be taught using a defined system. Proficiency in a particular work of art can only be achieved through self-interest and one's creative skills. Therefore, encouraging children to learn and develop an interest in any kind of art or craft is bound to enhance their creativity.

3 Why do some people think it is difficult to understand art?

It is a common belief that art is not everyone's cup of tea. Although the rationale behind this idea is simple and understandable to a certain extent, such notions are one-sided in nature. It is a well-known fact that art is entirely subjective. A piece of art can remarkably impact an individual, whereas the same can end up making no sense to another individual. Thus, when people are unable to decipher an artist's creation, they deem their work as incomprehensible and even illogical.

4 What can we do to make young people pay more attention to traditional art?

With changing times, the interests of the youth are also changing. The activities that engrossed our previous generations have become uneventful to the younger population in this era. Thus, to pique the interest of younger people in traditional art, such creative activities must be presented in a modern way. The activities popular among the youth must be amalgamated with fine arts. Arts and crafts contests must be held in school and college festivals. Information and knowledge about different artworks must be integrated with popular culture to grab the attention of the younger generation.

5 Do you think it's important to cultivate an appreciation of art in children?

In my opinion, introducing children to art and educating them to admire the creative mastery in great works of art is crucial in the development of their personalities. If a child is always engaged in school work and theoretical disciplines, their knowledge is bound to remain limited. Developing a keen interest in any art form is a gateway to discovering further areas of interest. At the same time, being devoid of any artistic awareness can also lead to a person lagging in social interactions. Thus, children should be encouraged to follow their preferred works of art from an early age.

6 Do you think art should be included in school curriculums? Why?

I believe that arts and crafts should be made a compulsory subject in the school curriculum. Although many schools include such disciplines in their curriculum, proper schooling is not provided to students in regards to art. There are several reasons why arts and crafts should be given more emphasis during a child's education. Firstly, they promote creativity and help children artistically express themselves. Secondly, they also help children discover their passion and even their preferred vocation. Furthermore, such activities help children balance their time between schoolwork and creative pursuits.

17. Describe a law on environmental protection.

You should say:

- What is it?
- How did you first learn about it?
- Who benefits from it?
- And explain how you feel about this law?

Sample Answer

Looking at the appalling conditions of the natural surroundings in this present day and age, laws and regulations for the protection of the environment are being implemented by the governments of several countries across the world. The law in particular that I am going to talk about is crucial for the preservation of our environment and the prevention of its further degradation. One of the chief causes of environmental degradation is the widespread increase of non-biodegradable waste, especially plastic. Since plastic and similar substances cannot decompose and become a part of the environment, they have a detrimental effect on the area where they are discarded. The prevalence of plastic is a consequence of its cost-effective nature. The production of plastic and other non-biodegradable materials has surged to such an extent that some believe that the damage caused by such harmful substances is irreversible. Nonetheless, measures are being taken to ameliorate the situation as governments are becoming aware of the dire consequences of plastic. Many states across our country have completely banned the use of plastic, especially in convenience stores. Special laws have been passed in various states that penalize the use of plastic, and anyone caught using plastic bags is bound to pay a hefty fine to the authorities. I first noticed this phenomenon when many convenience stores in my locality completely shifted to jute bags or paper bags to provide their customers with during purchases. This regulation has led to a significant reduction in the production of plastic waste in the regions where similar laws have been introduced. The positive impact of this measure is felt by the general public, as it has led to cleaner living conditions. I feel that such laws need to be implemented on a national level and immediate steps should be taken by the central government to address the situation.

Vocabulary

Appalling

Meaning: very bad, awful

Eg: The performance of the entire class was appalling in the Maths quiz.

Detrimental

Eg: The habit of smoking is detrimental to a person's health.

Ameliorate

Eg: The steps taken to ameliorate the quality of life by the government were unsatisfactory.

Hefty

Meaning: impressively large.

Eg: His poker luck earned him a hefty bankroll of 10 million dollars.

Part 3

1 Do you think this law is acceptable to the people?

Yes, I believe that such a law is widely accepted by the general public. These laws were an outcome of the efforts of several NGOs and welfare organizations, along with the increased awareness of the people regarding the decline of our natural habitat. Even before any laws were passed, there were instances where a sizeable number of people adopted the use of biodegradable materials. Also, in areas where environmental laws are not that stringent, people are known to follow an environment-friendly lifestyle on their own accord. Thus, it can be safely assumed that similar environmental laws are welcomed by the public.

2 Is there any situation wherein people may disobey the law?

Firstly, it is important to understand that obeying the law is the personal responsibility of an individual. There are several cases where people intentionally break the rules and cause harm to society. People of such a nature cannot be reasoned with to become better citizens. There are instances where people still use and ask for polythene bags even after knowing the consequences. In some cases, customers are known to squabble with shopkeepers when refused a plastic bag to carry their groceries.

3 What qualities should a police officer possess?

Due to the authority and the responsibility that police officers have to bear, they are required to possess an array of positive traits. The chief quality that must be present in a police officer is a zeal to serve the community. A police officer must also have an ethical moral compass and they should also be principled. Moreover, a calm disposition is essential to tackle problems without making rash decisions as law enforcers. Finally, police officers should be just and always assess the situation thoroughly before penalizing anyone.

4 Is kindness the most important quality of a police officer?

In my opinion, kindness is not the most important quality that a police officer should possess, although it should be a part of a law enforcer's personality. The role of a police officer is tough, and sometimes they are required to put aside their feelings and be stringent with lawbreakers. Thus, qualities like shrewdness, agility and honesty should hold more importance over kindness when enforcing the law. We should remember that criminals may not play fair and take advantage of an officer in the course of their duty. However, there are situations where a police officer must deal with a problem with kindness and avoid being too harsh on civilians.

5 Should people be penalized when they use mobile phones while driving?

In this day and age, when digital technology has enabled us to access information, receive and make calls hands-free, using mobile phones while driving is irrational. Even today, a majority of road accidents are caused due to the irresponsibility of drivers who are glued to their phone screens while driving. Although there are already hefty fines imposed on drivers who resort to such unlawful actions, there are people who remain unbothered and repeat such activities. I believe that more stringent measures must be taken to set an example. The licenses of drivers who use their phones either for making calls or texting while driving should be revoked on multiple counts of such illegal actions.

18. Describe a live sports match that you have watched.

You should say:

- What was it?
- When did you watch it?
- What was it like?
- And how did you feel about it?

Sample Answer

I have never been much of a sports person. After high school, my inclination towards playing outdoor sports gradually declined. Nevertheless, I have always followed sports events as my friends and family are ardent about watching sports. The most followed sports among my friends and family members are cricket and sometimes football. Like any other Indian, my friends and I are passionate about cricket, and we never miss any major cricket tournament or series. The opportunity of watching live cricket matches rarely presents itself, as we have to depend on the organizers of these events to schedule a game in our city. However, we had the good fortune of witnessing a live cricket match from the Indian Premier League, a cricket league between ten Indian cities based on the T-20 format. The match I am going to talk about here was held in 2016 during September, and it was between the teams of Kolkata and Chennai. The entire experience was exhilarating from the beginning till the end. My friends, and I, had adjacent seats. Since our seats were almost at the bottom of the stadium, we could see every player and the entire field. During the match, one of the batsmen hit a sixer, and the ball flew into the crowd behind us and created a huge ruckus which was also fun to watch. The match lasted for the entire evening and continued well into the night. Every moment of the match was nail-biting and both the teams performed marvellously. In the end, the home team of Kolkata, which was the team we supported, won, and the entire stadium erupted as the winning boundary was scored. I will never forget this experience as I had never felt more passionate about cricket than I did on that day.

Eg: The teacher was furious when the students created a ruckus in the classroom.

Part 3

1 Do you prefer to watch live sports or watch it on TV?

I have always preferred watching sports on television. Given a choice, any individual would choose to watch sports on television over live events. Watching sports in the comfort of one's home can never be surpassed. Although, watching a live cricket or football match with thousands of people has its moments, overall, it is a weary experience. Also, live sports events are only fun to watch when your favourite teams are playing, which is a rare occurrence.

2 Why do some people like to watch live sports?

The very essence of sports is to enjoy the thrill with a group of people. Sports enthusiasts will always enjoy every moment during a match. The hustle and bustle of the crowds, the collective roars of fans when their favourite player scores and the general ambience is what attracts people to watch live sports. The idea of enjoying two major sports teams competing against each other is something that attracts sports lovers all over the world. Watching a live sports event propagates a feeling of exhilaration that cannot be experienced anywhere else.

3 What kind of sports do Indian people like to watch?

Indians are in-born sports lovers. With a population of more than one billion people, nearly every sport has fans all over the country. The most popular sports that Indians enjoy playing and following are team sports. Sports like cricket, football, hockey, kabaddi are some of the sports that have an enormous fan following in India. I believe that the passion Indians have for cricket cannot be matched by any other nation or community.

4 Do you think competition is good for students?

In my opinion, competition among students is healthy and should be encouraged. It is a known fact that not every student in a class can perform exceptionally. A classroom consists of academically bright individuals and others who might have their talents in other disciplines.

That being said, the urge to perform well and receive praise can be a motivating factor for students to give their best. However, students should also be taught to focus their efforts on improving themselves and not put too much thought into outdoing other students.

5 Do you think children should be involved in sports competitions?

Yes, I agree with the notion that children should be encouraged to take part in sports contests. The habit of engaging in physical activities and sports should be adopted at an early age. As it is easier to form healthy habits at a young age, being athletic can have several benefits for individuals throughout their lives. Additionally, competing in sports events, especially team sports, helps children develop good interpersonal skills. Such practices can help youngsters be team players and exhibit sportsmanship traits throughout their lives.

19. Describe your favourite movie.

You should say:

- When and where did you see it?
- What type of film was it?
- What was the film about?
- And explain why it is your favourite film?

Sample Answer

Watching films and movies has always been a great passion of mine. Ever since I discovered the artistry of cinema, I've always been fascinated by the works of great directors. Filmmakers like Stanley Kubrick, Alfred Hitchcock, Martin Scorsese, Satyajit Ray are some of my favourite directors. The movie that I would like to talk about here is Pulp Fiction by Quentin Tarantino, another great movie director whose work is deemed one of the best in filmmaking history. The first time I saw Pulp Fiction was in 2018 when I first started watching movies as a diurnal ritual. It was a Saturday, and since I had no prior plans for the evening, I was browsing on Google for good crime dramas at home when I came across this particular movie. Since Pulp Fiction is considered as one of the greatest works of not only Quentin Tarantino but in the crime genre as a whole, it was ranked among the top ten search results on Google. The mastery of Tarantino is evident in this film, which doesn't have a philosophical or poetic message but is simply a montage of different stories and instances of crime and drama among a set of characters, which are somehow interlinked. Nevertheless, even without a deeper meaning, the film engages the viewer with witty dialogue, an unconventional narrative and aesthetic cinematography. The most brilliant aspect of this film, and what makes it my favourite is the non-linear storytelling which makes the audience think that the events in the movie are unrelated, until the final scene where the narration ends where it began, connecting the whole story.

Vocabulary

Artistry

Meaning: creative skill or ability.

Eg: The artistry of Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan is unmatched.

Deemed

Eg: The event was deemed a commercial success.

Eg: He was known for his witty humour.

Part 3*1 Do you think (watching) films have (has) any educational benefits?

The value that a person can derive from a film is dependent on the viewer. There is always a deeper meaning or a message that a film tries to convey to the audience. There are also numerous films that are based on true events and historical occurrences. Moreover, films are not always made for entertainment purposes. Some are made with an educational agenda in mind. Thus, I believe that there are several educational benefits to watching films.

2 In what ways are documentary films and films only for entertainment different?

While documentaries are a sub-genre of movies, the range of movies made for entertainment can span across hundreds of categories. The major difference between a documentary and a regular movie is that documentaries are always non-fictional, whereas a majority of recreational movies are fictional. Furthermore, there is little to no use of skilful cinematography, engaging dialogue and music in documentary films which is entirely different from the format followed by other motion pictures. The artistic expression in documentaries is very limited due to the factual nature of the subjects covered in these films. Movies belonging to other genres, however, often have a deeper meaning or a message.

3 Why do you think documentary films are not so popular?

Documentary films have a limited audience due to several reasons. Documentaries intend to educate the viewers on a particular topic. The audience of documentaries is mainly researchers and scholars. The reason behind documentaries being an overlooked genre is the technique in which they are made. Since a majority of movie enthusiasts want to be entertained by a movie, the lack of any aesthetic appeal makes documentaries a neglected category.

4 How are movies and real-life different?

Everything about a movie is different from reality. The motive behind filmmaking is to give a form to an artist's imagination. In the realm of movies, anything is possible, which is not the case in real-life. Moreover, the events in a film are in the control of the director, whereas the life of a human being is not directed or controlled by someone else. Also, real life is filled with highs and lows, movies on the other hand, sometimes only depict the positive aspects of a subject.

5 Do different age groups like the same kinds of films?

The taste in movies may vastly differ between people belonging to different age groups. Our parents and grandparents are from an era where motion pictures were not technologically advanced and augmented. Cinema has evolved tremendously over the years and the kinds of movies made today are poles apart from films from previous generations. Thus, the choice of films also varies among different age groups. However, there are exceptions to this notion, and there are a few films that are liked by people of all age groups.

20. Describe a natural talent you want to improve like sports, music.

You should say:

- What is it?
- When did you discover it?
- How do you want to improve it?
- And how do you feel about it?

Sample Answer

Every individual has some inborn capabilities. Some of us discover these skills early on, whereas others realize their talents later on in life. We often tend to neglect these abilities due to various reasons. However, I am going to talk about my talent for poetry that I am proud of and which I have always wanted to improve and utilize more in my spare time. As a school student, I was always fascinated by literature, but poetry intrigued me. Initially, during school, my fondness for poetry was limited to reading the works of great poets like Robert Frost, Emily Dickinson and Sylvia Plath. The first time I discovered my knack for poetry was in the 8th grade when during a free period, our English teacher asked us to write something creative. While most of my classmates were busy writing short stories and other types of fiction, I was among the very few who attempted to write a poem. The fact which impressed my teacher the most was that before a majority of the class was done writing, I was able to come up with a terse but charming poem on friendship in a matter of minutes. Subsequently, I have always considered poetry and writing as my passion. I wish to improve my creative writing skills by exploring new themes and writing styles. Writing has always been a very satisfying activity for me as it acts as a healthy forum to convey my thoughts and feelings. In the future, I hope I can invest more time in writing and publishing my creative works.

Part 3*1 Do you think artists with talents should focus on their talents?

Yes, in my opinion, artists should always focus on their talents. A person might be a very skilled painter, but if they neglect their work, no amount of talent will produce a satisfying result. There are many instances when a person with a certain talent loses touch with that ability. In such situations, a person might lose their skill and subsequently their passion for that discipline as well. Therefore, it is always important to focus on improving your skills and strive to give your best.

2 Is it possible for us to know the children who are 3 or 4 years old will become musicians or painters when they grow up?

I don't think it is possible to recognize and undeniably conclude what an infant of 3 to 4 years will turn out to be later on in life. A person experiences countless ups and downs in the course of their life. These experiences are crucial in developing the personality of an individual. A person might be fond of painting during childhood, but they might find a keen interest in adventure sports later in life. Thus, it is practically impossible to assume the vocation of a person at such a young age.

3 Do you think parents feel guilty for putting too much pressure on their children?

I believe that the feeling of guilt is dependent on the nature of the parents. Most parents have an innate sense of affection for their children. However, there are a few cases where parents do not recognize the mental stress that they put on their kids. Sometimes, parents feel compelled to pressurize their children due to their lack of academic competence. Nevertheless, I also believe that parents do regret putting too much stress on their children in some way or another.

4 Why do people like to watch talent shows?

There can be several reasons for watching a talent show. Talent shows are a great dais for people to show their skills and abilities to the world. I believe that the audience of talent shows are mostly present for entertainment purposes. However, there are cases where talent shows act as an encouragement for people to express their capabilities. In a few cases, people also watch talent shows to follow a person that they know or are familiar with and show their support.

5 Do you think it is more interesting to watch famous people or ordinary people's shows?

In my opinion, some people are more entertained by viewing famous people while others prefer to watch regular people on television. This predilection is entirely dependent on a person's taste and personality. For example, numerous shows merely broadcast the lavish lifestyle of celebrities, and such shows are extremely popular with a certain segment of people. On the other hand, shows like "Who wants to be a millionaire", which is a show consisting of ordinary people, is also one of the most-watched shows on television. Thus, a person's disposition is a determining factor when it comes to the choice of television shows.

It is undeniable that human beings are prone to diseases and ailments at different phases in their lives, and staying healthy is not an option but a necessity to live a stress-free life. Here, I'd like to talk about a time when I suffered from sickness. I would feel under the weather very rarely, and this happened a couple of years ago when we were heading back from a wedding in Pune to our home in Kolkata. I was fatigued after a 5-hour flight, so I skipped my dinner and slept right away. But at around 3 am, I had a severe cramp and could not bear the pain. My body was completely chilled. I complained about it to my parents, who immediately rushed me to the hospital. After a thorough examination, the doctor opined that I had developed acute appendicitis, which could be removed by minor surgery. Before being diagnosed with appendicitis, I felt a severe stomach ache now and then, followed by pain in the belly button, nausea and vomiting. But since I had no idea about appendicitis, I approached my pharmacist friend, who suggested some pain killers and injections. Although I didn't develop the same symptoms again, I wasn't able to control the pain after reaching my home from Pune. So, I did some home remedies to relieve the pain. But it only got worse. Consequently, I decided to consult the doctor and opt for surgery. Overall, it was a very tough time, and the unbearable pain and suffering made me change my food habits; I realized that health is wealth and that a balanced work-life can surely make a big difference to our mind and body.

In recent times, several sky-high buildings with unique designs have emerged in my city, Dubai. It is irrefutable that there's no shortage of tall buildings and dazzling skyscrapers in Dubai. Many contemporary buildings, massive malls and gigantic towers either reach above the clouds or touch the skyline of the city. But above all, I love the iconic Burj Khalifa, the world's tallest building. It is one of the famous places in Dubai. The 160-storey iconic tower rises 2,716.5 ft. above ground level. Located in downtown Dubai, the Burj Khalifa is the city's hottest tourist hub. Many VIP guests and renowned celebrities visit and stay at the multi-purpose building. People living in the luxurious apartments of Burj Khalifa have access to a plethora of amenities like a swimming pool, valet services, jacuzzi, 24x7 maintenance, gym facilities, sauna and steam rooms. Besides, there's a lounge area, corporate suites, apartments, hotels, etc., inside the building. The building looks ethereal at night, and during the day, it looks spectacular. The amazing Burj Khalifa left me in awe because of its cloud-piercing height, and visiting the spectacular structure is a fantasy in and of itself. In today's fast-paced world, everyone is interested in living in single-storey or double-storey buildings, and the government is making considerable efforts to improve people's living standards by developing such massive storey structures.

3 Why aren't there many tall buildings in the countryside?

Well, this is because of the availability of land. It is believed that tall buildings don't make sense in the vacant land areas available in the countryside as they're usually built concentrating the business hubs. People residing in the countryside are accustomed to living in open spaces and not in a congested environment. As a result, tall buildings are not seen in the countryside.

4 Why do some people like to live in tall buildings nowadays?

I think the main reason is that they can perceive amazing views, less noise, and good quality of air. One of my colleagues, Joey, asked me if I could share my room with him. It was an awkward moment for me as I was not habituated to sharing my things. But then I heard his struggle of hunting for a rental house and not getting any. It made me think about my disappointing situation as I, too, had gone through the same. Consequently, I decided to give it a shot and asked him to shift to my house. As days went by, I felt extremely comfortable with him, and we became very close to each other. Planning is an integral part of our life. Planning, in whatever form, aids an individual in achieving their goals, purpose and dreams. Here, I'd like to talk about a plan that is not related to study or work. Recently, my brother and I made a plan to buy a 3BHK apartment for my parents, who are currently residing abroad. It's almost been a decade since they left their native place in Bangalore and moved to Canada. Now that they're returning to the country as their permanent residency status expired, I, along with my brother, planned to surprise them by gifting them an apartment in Electronic City. Our family had been living in a rental house from my childhood days, and when my father got a job opportunity in Canada, he migrated to the country with my mother. But now that my brother and I are doing well in our business, we planned to surprise our parents by presenting them with an apartment of their own. Buying a 3BHK apartment in the Silicon Valley of India is highly complicated as the city is overcrowded with dazzling skyscrapers and multi-storey buildings. We need to do extensive research on the availability of apartments in the city, its location, the society, availability of civic amenities, transportation, safety, etc. Besides these factors, we also need to figure out the budget accordingly, and if required, we should apply for a loan to buy the new house. Meanwhile, we'll feel accomplished if we gift a house to our parents as it is our childhood dream to present our parents something that they'll cherish forever in their life.

I'm a passionate shopaholic, and I believe that shopping is a great pastime. Usually, I shop at different places like shopping malls, roadside stores, and street markets. But I'm fond of street shopping as I'm amazed by the so many things available at one place at an affordable price. Also, I can easily bargain for a good price, which in the malls or stores may seem impossible. This street market, also known as an open-air market, is situated 2 km away from my house near the North East Beach in my city, where one can witness an array of stores and stalls of all sorts of items, including electronics, convenience stores, food joints, clothing & grocery store, home decor & handicraft items, furniture showroom, etc. In other words, the open-air market is a hub of almost everything. The vibrant lanes of the open-air market are divided into separate markets selling different goods for wholesalers and retailers so that people may not get confused. This street market is famous for its discounts and deals for imported electronic gadgets, home appliances, and mobile phone accessories. Many dealers from across the state visit the open-air market to purchase the electronic products in bulk, and this is the reason the place is always crowded. If someone is really good at negotiating, then they're lucky to crack unbelievable deals. Nowadays, most people prefer wearing trendy clothes because they want to fit in their social circles. Also, such fashionable clothes reveal a lot about their personality. Family get-togethers and dinner parties are quite often in my family; it's more like a tradition. However, this one paternal aunt of mine, Lisa, usually attends dinner parties wearing bizarre clothes. She's an attention seeker who doesn't follow the usual dressing patterns as she believes that wearing such offbeat clothes would grab everyone's eyeballs towards her. Her weird dressing sense made everyone laugh at her. But on one such occasion, Aunt Lisa wore a fluorescent green top attached with a linen jacket and a tiara with lights. Initially, we felt it was unusual as it wasn't a themed party. But her unique attire caught everyone's attention, and when the lights went off, her attire shone so radiantly in the dark. Although her costume seemed awkward at first, it was eye-catching in the pitch dark. Some of my other aunts even got inspired by this outfit and asked her about it. As some of my notes were saved on my mobile phone, I opened the PDFs and prepared for the exam. A few moments later, the bell rang, so all the students, including me, stood in the queue to verify documents and check other items. When it was my turn, the examiner discovered a mobile phone in my pocket, which stunned me. I realized that I had unknowingly put the mobile phone in my pocket, just like I used to put other times. Everyone in the hall looked at me as if I'd committed an offense. Later, I apologized and explained the reason to the examiner. Although he believed my justification, he punished me by giving me just an hour to complete the exam while others got 2 hours to complete the exam. According to the university instructions, it is not permissible to carry any electronic devices to the exam hall. Even the exam invigilators would have to turn off their mobile phones. It is an acknowledged fact that people argue when their ideas and thoughts are not considered. Everyone is unique, and sometimes their thoughts don't match, which results in an argument. However, from my personal experience, I'd say that arguing is a natural process of developing a strong bond with the other person. Here, I'd like to talk about a time when my friends had a disagreement, which later turned out to be a heated argument. We were a bunch of four friends who were always together, and our friendship was solid. During our holidays, we decided to visit a nearby amusement park. To our surprise, there was a small crafts exhibition at the entrance of the park. There were many artworks, paintings, graphics, clay models, books, handicrafts, handmade jewellery, etc., on display. Almost all the halls were packed with the displayed articles. As we moved forward, we saw different rides, some scary, some funny, and some water rides. So, four of us decided to go on the roller coaster ride and bought the entry ticket.

When we saw the giant roller coaster, we were surprised by its height, which entailed adventure. But suddenly, one of my friends, Jack, who was afraid of heights, didn't want to join us. Another friend, John, didn't let Jack go, as he wanted to make a vlog of us enjoying the ride. A minor issue began into a heated argument; everyone around was looking at them. So, at this point, my friend Elle and I intervened and requested them to stop the quarrel. After that, we dropped the idea of going on a roller coaster ride as it was the only solution that seemed right at that moment. Post the argument, we tried to calm both of them and moved ahead to the food stalls.

To sum up, I felt that John should've understood Jack's anxiety and avoided the argument. But he was adamant, and so was Jack. Later, they realized their mistakes and forgave each other.

Cooking is an art, and what has made cooking easier over time is the kitchen equipment. It is of great help and assistance in maintaining the cleanliness or orderliness in the kitchen. Here, let me describe a piece of equipment that is important in my home, the Air Fryer. As everyone in my home loves eating fried food items every week, I decided to purchase an air fryer as the air-fried foods have a lower fat content than deep-fried foods, which can help in weight loss and are completely safer and healthier when compared to deep-fried food items, which contain a lot more fat than foods cooked in other ways. Air fryers are user-friendly kitchen appliances that circulate heat at high temperatures to fry, bake, or grill the food with minimal use of oil. All we need to do is add the respective veggies or non-vegetarian food item, and we need to add one tablespoon of the negligible amount of cooking oil and set the time and temperature gauge. However, the meal gets ready within 15 to 20 minutes when the timer goes off. I use the air fryer thrice a week whenever my family desires to eat the fried food items. It requires less oil and produces a similar taste to what we can expect in deep frying methods. Also, it eases up and fastens my cooking time. From my personal point of view, the Air Fryer is essential as it enables me to cook fried food items easily with less oil. It ultimately produces healthier foods than most deep-fried foods. People go on vacation or holidays to take a break from their monotonous life, enjoy the place, feel relaxed, and get back refreshed. Everyone loves travelling to different parts of the world to enjoy the wonderful holidays they dream about. Moreover, holidays are natural stress relievers. Here, I'd like to talk about my holiday experience. Usually, I used to spend my holidays in my hometown in Pondicherry. Owing to my studies and my father's business, we stay in a metropolitan city. So, whenever my summer holidays are declared, my sister and I pack our bags and rush to visit our grandparents. The journey takes about 4-5 hours by road. Although the journey is extremely long, the excitement of meeting my loved ones after a long time washes away the tiresome feeling of the journey. As our vacation period was limited, our family decided to stay at my grandparent's house for only a week. But we made sure to make as many memories as possible. Pondicherry is a great place that offers serenity in a true sense. My sister and I do many interesting and adventurous activities such as scuba diving, surfing, exploring the city on a bike, visiting the sacred Auroville, etc. One of the most exciting experiences during my holiday was during the nights when we used to sneak out of the house to stroll at the nearby beach. It was an awesome experience to admire the slow-moving waves and enjoy the gaze of the glimmering stars. I must say that the eclectic vibe of the beach re-energizes and rejuvenates our souls. To summarize, I cherish each and every moment spent during my holidays.

Life is all about experimenting, and trying something for the first time is always exciting and fun. Being a food connoisseur myself, I love experimenting with new cuisines of various cultures and nations. I recently visited my hometown in India, where I exercised my taste buds by eating a flavorsome delicacy. On a rainy weekend, I went to a street food joint with my friends. The first thing they served as a starter was the Samosa. It was not the usual deep-fried potato samosa. Rather they had made it with ground lamb. Initially, I wasn't sure about trying it. But at my friends' insistence, I tasted a bit of it and found it delicious. The spices and flavors were perfectly blended, and the crispness of the dough was up to a point. Overall, it was finely cooked. The puffy samosa treat was accompanied by delectable sweet and tangy cilantro sauce. I enjoyed admiring how these fried, or baked patties were filled with well-spiced & grounded lamb, along with onions, wrapped up into a cone, triangle, or dome shape and then deep-fried in the cooking oil. I must say that the lamb samosa is a simplified version of the traditional lamb curry, and I loved every bit of it. Moreover, this crispy and crunchy starter meal was not only filling but also tasted heavenly. I was so impressed with its taste that I visited the food joint the next day as well.

However, the tastes in each restaurant may vary.

(Where was it?) I attended two different schools. Although I was just 4 years old when I was enrolled in primary school, the memory of my first day is still fresh in my mind. My primary school was smaller than my secondary school and was just about half an hour from my home. Here I'd like to talk about my first day at primary school.

(What happened?) While my mother was discussing the timings with the teacher, I was feeling very anxious and continuously sobbing as my mother, who accompanied me, was about to leave me alone with a few strangers whom I have not even met. As I turned around, I saw many kids like me who were jittery and weeping. The next moment, I was handed over to the teacher. She gently caressed and introduced me to the entire class. Later, we got to know each other, and the teacher made us do some ice-breakers.

(Explain how you felt on that day?) Post recess, the teacher distributed toffees and toys and made all the kids feel comfortable. #### 3 Should children rely on their parents or be independent?

This has always been a conflicting subject. Most of the parents find it difficult to deal with such a dilemma. However, in my opinion, until children become self-sufficient and self-reliant, they can rely on their parents. Once they become mature and start earning, they should stand on their own legs. This will help them be independent, understand how the world works and be more confident.

4 What is the effect if parents interfere with children's life too much?

Many people dream of being doctors, teachers, engineers, programmers, actors, etc.

2 Why should parents encourage children to have ambition?

Parents should encourage their children to be ambitious. Infact, they should help their children in achieving those ambitions. Parents should guide and motivate their children to set goals at an early age, take the risk, work hard, and feel the satisfaction that comes from achieving the goal.

3 Should parents interfere with their children's ambitions?

In my opinion, parents should not interfere and become a hurdle to their children's ambition. If parents keep on interfering with their children's ambitions, then the child will not live his dreams. If a child wants to be an artist, he must follow his passion, and parents shouldn't object to it.

4 Is there any difference in the ambition of grown-ups and children?

There's a huge difference between the ambitions of grown-ups and children. While children usually dream for grade-based goals, adults aim for the goals depending on their personalities, lifestyle, and beliefs. And there are few people who just aim to live life to the fullest instead of worrying about the future.

50. Describe an event you attended in which you didn't like the music played.

You should talk about:

- Where were you?
- What was the music like?
- Explain why you didn't like the music?

Sample Answer

(What was the event?) People from all walks of life, listen to music as it gives peace and rejuvenates a fatigued mind. In fact, I love listening to fusion and pop songs even when I am cooking or cleaning. I'd like to talk about an event where I was not too fond of the music as it wasn't apt for that situation. It was one of my bosom friend's reception. (Where were you?) Since the reception was at 7 PM, I reached a little earlier to check on my friend. I was really impressed seeing the glittery decorations. Being a dance enthusiast, I went up to the DJ and asked him to play the song which I had recommended so that I can dance my heart out at my friend's reception. (What was the music like?) To my surprise, the DJ was hesitant to play the song and told me that my friend's family had given strict instructions to play only those songs recommended by my friend's grandparents. All my excitement went down as I was not acquainted with the song that was being played. (Explain why you didn't like the music?) I thought of dancing in a party song, but only cultural songs were played, for which I was not prepared. I felt disheartened as I couldn't dance at my friend's reception due to the song. That was the very first time I didn't enjoy the song.

No. Be it music or any other domain, the tastes and choices of people vary. Older people usually prefer listening to soft, slow melodious music with meaningful lyrics, while younger people listen to pop and rock music.

I was of the opinion that music concerts are not for older people as they wouldn't be able to stand for long hours, but nowadays most of the concerts also offer chairs to sit and enjoy the show. So older people can also enjoy them.
